In a study of social learning, there were two groups of children.

Group 1: the children saw a series of short films in which one child was seen helping another child. For example, when one child fell down, a second child helped him to get up. Every time there was a helping behaviour, an adult praised the child who had helped.

Group 2: the children saw a series of short films of children playing in which there was no helping behaviour and no praise seen.

Using your knowledge of social learning theory, explain which group of children is more likely to show helping behaviour in the future.

Jack says, "I think all human behaviour can be explained by studying individual chemicals and processes in the body."

Hari replies, "I am not so sure. That would be a bit like trying to explain what a cake is by looking at the flour, eggs, sugar and butter that are used to make it."

Explain Jack and Hari's conversation using your knowledge of holism and reductionism.

Paulo is a chef working at a local restaurant. The restaurant is losing customers and money, so Paulo will have to wait for the pay rise he is due and for the coffee machine that the restaurant staff were promised.

Paulo's boss designs the menu and tells him what to cook. Paulo is sure he could attract more customers if he could choose the menu and cook his own dishes. Recently, Paulo has complained about a lack of motivation and satisfaction at work.

Using your knowledge of need theory, explain what Paulo's boss could do to improve Paulo's motivation and satisfaction at work.
